User Not Present

ABSTRACT

5

A method and apparatus is provided for invoking authenticated transactions on behalf of a user when the user is not present. For example, the invention allows a subscription to take actions that would otherwise require authentication, such as performing collections from a wallet, when the user is not present. Thus, the 10   invention provides a form of delegation of authority.